

Traditional Date

Dinner and a movie is an easy go-to. It's now so much easier to combine the two into one time slot if you can't stay out long i.e. you have toddlers and babysitters aren't cheap. Painting with a Twist style classes allow you to try your hand at a van Gogh while sipping yummy wine.

Dream Date

Find a cute and cozy coffee or tea shop and share the dreams you have for your life, career, family/future family, etc. The goal is to only dream big together, not strategize. Ride high on flights-of-fancy for a night.

Non-Traditional Date

Try your hand at paint-balling, archery, cooking classes, or trapeze class. Seriously, anything you'd usually never do, go for it!

Introvert Date

Sometimes you and your Boo need quiet time, especially when life feels hectic. Grab a couple of books or your laptops, find a quaint spot-park, coffee shop, restaurant-and spend time together...IN SILENCE. What makes this fun is looking up and "making eyes" at your significant other and settling into the peace of being with each other.

Double Date Food Experience

Call your best couple-buds and try a new restaurant that will push your palate to be brave. Try the new sushi bar, winery, or oyster bar and indulge in some decadent dishes.

Fancy-Night Date

Dress up (wear those heels you never get to wear) and go to a fancy dinner, a beautiful ballet or concert. The goal of the night is to dote on one another while looking elegant and dashing!

Hiking Date

Wear your comfy clothes and shoes with the most traction, pack a charcuterie-style lunch and hike a trail that leads you to a beautiful peak or calm river. There's something so revitalizing about sitting outside and taking in fresh air and peaceful surroundings.
